Criminally and Civilly Retained Cases with Annotations

People v. Susan Smith (1995). Retained by the defense to analyze and interpret the psychological test data of the defendant.

People v. Richard Allen Davis (1995-6). Retained by the defense as the psychiatric and psychological litigation consultant in the death of Polly Klaas, the victim.

People v. Robert Hoskins (1995). Retained by the prosecution as the psychological consultant on the stalking of Madonna Ciconne, the victim.

State of Colorado vs. Albert Petrosky, Jr. (1996). Retained by the prosecution as a rebuttal expert at trial for the defense psychiatric and psychological evidence. This case was a regional case involving mass murder after spousal estrangement: the defendant killed his wife, her lover, and a police officer. The defendant subsequently committed suicide, which was noted in the New York Times on May 11, 1996.

People v. Danny Palm (1996). Retained by the defense and testified as an expert witness on "predatory" vs. "affective" violence. This case was covered by Court TV and focused on the murder of an antisocial victim who had frightened and intimidated a community for three years, and was subsequently shot to death by a retired Navy officer on behalf of his family and neighbors.

In Re: B.T. (1996). Consulted with the psychiatrist leading the team evaluating a six year old charged with attempted murder in the beating of an infant in Richmond, California. My specific role, as requested by the psychiatrist, was to review the final draft of the report submitted to the court, review the psychological and neuropsychological test findings, and offer treatment recommendations. Subsequent to this consult the report prompted the district attorney to drop the attempted murder charges and proceed on prosecution/disposition concerning lesser charges.

The United States v. Timothy James McVeigh (1996). Retained by the prosecution as their forensic psychologist and mitigation rebuttal expert.

The United States v. Terry Lynn Nichols (1997). Retained by the prosecution as their forensic psychologist and mitigation rebuttal expert.

The United States v. John Hinckley, Jr. (1998). Retained by the prosecution as a forensic psychological consultant concerning release of the subject to involuntary outpatient treatment.

People v. Gerald Atkins (1998). Retained by the defense as a forensic psychologist to render opinions concerning the diagnosis and mental state at the time of the crime of the defendant. Testified at trial on April 13, 1998. Focus of testimony was erotomanic delusional disorder and triangulation as an explanation for his assault on a Ford plant outside Detroit which resulted in the homicide of a manager and the wounding of two police officers. The defendant was found guilty of all crimes charged and sane at the time of the crime.

Orenthal J. Simpson v. Louis Brown et al. (1998). Filed an amicus curiae brief with S. Doyne, D. Dutton, P. Jaffe, J. Bowermaster, and S. Temko concerning the special needs of children exposed to spousal violence. The brief was accepted by the Fourth Appellate District Court (Division Three) and sealed. On Nov. 10, 1998 the appeals court overturned the ruling that allowed Mr. Simpson to retain custody of his children and remanded the case back to the original commissioner for retrial. They opined that evidence from the killing of Nicole Brown Simpson would have to be considered. The California Supreme Court subsequently upheld the finding in February, 1999.

People v. Timothy Masters. (1997-1999). Retained by law enforcement agency and the prosecution in the investigation and subsequent trial of a defendant in a ten year old sexual homicide case. The arrest and prosecution was based upon the extensive pre-offense productions of the defendant since there was no direct evidence linking him to the crime. Testimony involved both an evidentiary hearing and jury trial. Defendant was convicted of first degree murder. The conviction was overturned in January, 2008.

People v. Lucas Salmon. (1997-1999). Retained by the defense in a capital trial involving a defendant who conspired with his friend and committed the abduction, rape, and killing of a 22 year old stranger female. My testimony at the guilt and penalty phases involved mitigating evidence that this defendant was a dependent personality disorder who became a compliant accomplice of a psychopath and sexual sadist to carry out the latter's sexually homicidal fantasies. Defendant was found guilty and sentenced to life in prison.

Turner v. Duncan. (1999). A federal habeas hearing following a finding by the ninth circuit court of appeals that defendant, in prison for murder, had incompetent representation at the time of his trial in 1981 (158 F.3d 449). I testified on behalf of the defendant that the jury was prejudiced at the time since they did not hear any expert testimony concerning the known facts and scientific expertise on serial sexual rapists (the victim) and rape trauma syndrome. My testimony was limited by the federal judge to extant research at the time of the original trial. The judge found prejudice and granted the writ. The Los Angeles County District Attorney's subsequently charged the defendant with manslaughter, he accepted a guilty verdict, and was released with time served.

Maria D. v. Westec et al. (1999). A civil trial in which the plaintiff sued the defendant following an alleged rape "under color of authority" by an employee of the defendant in 1997. There was no criminal prosecution. I evaluated the plaintiff and determined that she did have PTSD. I was not called to testify at trial. The jury found for the defendant.

People v. Derwin Anderson (1999). A "third strike" case in which I was retained by the prosecution to determine whether or not the defendant was legally insane at the time of the crime. I testified that he was not insane at the time of the crime. The jury deadlocked, the defendant withdrew his insanity defense, and a plea bargain for 18 years in prison was accepted.

People v. Marquell Smith (1999). Testified for the defense concerning the propensity of the state's prosecution witness to chronically lie in a death penalty trial of the two perpetrators of the "tri-cities robberies", a local San Diego case.

People v. Steve Larsen (1999). Testified for the defense in a restoration of sanity case involving a paranoid schizophrenic man who murdered his physician in 1986. Testimony focused upon research concerning schizophrenia, violence, and medication compliance. Patient was restored to sanity.

National Crime Faculty (1999-2000). Forensic psychological consultant on the Jill Dando case, a British news anchorwoman murdered in April, 1999 at her home in London. Consultation subsequently led to the arrest and prosecution of Barry George. The defendant was found guilty of her murder on July 2, 2001, and sentenced to life in prison. Verdict was overturned in 2008.

State v. Russell Dean (2000). Testified for the defense in a homicide case in which the common law husband of a stalking victim ambushed and killed the stalker in Baker City, Oregon. Testimony focused upon a psychological autopsy of the victim and stalking research. The jury convicted the defendant of voluntary manslaughter.

People v. Danielle Barcheers (2000). Testified for the defense in a homicide case in which the defendant was the youngest female (age 15) ever tried as an adult for murder in California. Testimony focused upon her sadomasochistic relationship with a dominant male which replicated her severe physical and sexual abuse as a child, age 2, culminating in the killing of the male's step grandmother. The jury convicted her of first degree murder.

Colon v. Henderson (2000). Retained by the U.S. Attorney in Florida as an expert witness in a civil case involving allegations of sexual harassment against the U.S. Post Office and certain employees.

People v. xxxxx (2000, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a homicide case involving the killing of a violent and mentally ill man by a younger man. The case was charged as first degree murder, but settled with a plea of voluntary manslaughter.

State v. xxxxx (2000, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a case involving a man charged with various counts of abduction and sexual assault. The FBI believed the man was also a serial killer and a sexual sadist whose criminal career spanned four decades. Trial resulted in a hung jury and a declared mistrial.

People v. Dante Soiu (2000). Retained by the prosecution as their expert witness in a California case involving a man who stalked the actress Gwyneth Paltrow over the course of a year. The man entered a plea of guilty, and not guilty by reason of insanity. I opined that he was insane at the time of the crime, and agreed with the other experts. Both prosecution and defense stipulated to the NGRI finding.

State of Florida v. Dubravko Rajcevic (2001). Consulted with the prosecution concerning the criminal trial of a 46 year old man charged with stalking the tennis player Martina Hingis. The defendant was convicted of misdemeanor stalking in the Miami courtroom of Judge Kevin Emas.

People v. Ronald Blamey (2001). Retained by the prosecution in the case of a spousal homicide and subsequent staging of a sexual homicide at a distant location. Testified at trial. Defendant was convicted of second degree murder with a weapons enhancement.

People v. xxxxx (2000-2001, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in the case of a serial murder who raped and killed two young women in California. Evaluated the defendant, but did not testify at trial. Defendant was convicted and sentenced to death.

Richardson v. Steptoe and Johnson (2000-2001). Retained by the defense in a civil case involving perjured testimony by criminalist Fred Zain in a murder trial in the State of West Virginia. The case settled before trial.

Silvas v. Southbay Community Services (2000-2001). Retained by the plaintiff in a civil case involving standard of practice by mental health practitioners preceding a domestic homicide involving stalking. The case settled out of court.

People v. Edward Allaway (2000-2001). Retained by the defense in a restoration of sanity case concerning a mass murder which occurred in 1976. Testified at the writ hearing on behalf of the insanity acquittee that he no longer constituted a danger if released to an involuntary outpatient treatment program. Release was denied by the court.

Nevada v. Peter Bergna (2002). Retained by the prosecution in the second trial of a man accused of murdering his wife and then staging it as an automobile accident. The defendant was convicted of first degree murder.

Conservatorship of Mark Hall (2002). Testified for the prosecution in a stalking case involving a defendant found permanently incompetent in California. The civil commitment hearing focused on current danger toward others. After two hearings, the juries could not reach a verdict.

Commitment of Rodney Yoder (2002). Testified for the State of Illinois in a forensic hospital civil commitment case involving danger to self and others. The defendant considered himself a political prisoner and was represented by the Church of Scientology. Defendant was recommitted by a jury.

State of Oregon v. Kathleen Blankenship (2003). Testified for the defense in a murder case on catathymic homicide. The judge ruled that it was a mental disorder. Defendant was found guilty.

Nevada v. Donald Phillips (2003). Retained by the prosecution and testified in a stalking case in which Steve Wynn was the victim and the plea was insanity. The defendant was found guilty and sane on all counts, and sentenced to life in prison due to third strike.

People v. Scott Thorpe (2003). Retained by the prosecution and testified in a mass murder case in which the defendant pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity. Defendant was found insane in a bench trial in Nevada County, California.

May v. Franklin County (2003). Retained by the plaintiff in a civil case which involved the failure of police to intervene in a domestic violence incident that subsequently resulted in the homicide of the female victim. Case settled.

People v. Christopher Fiegehen (2003). Retained by the defense in a murder case involving the death of the father and wounding of the mother of the estranged girlfriend following several weeks of stalking behavior by the defendant. Defendant was found guilty of all charges.

Hoffman v. County of San Diego (2004). Retained by the defense in a jail suicide case. The case settled following deposition.

People v. Wayne Adam Ford (2000-2006). Retained by the defense in a serial murder case of four female victims. Testified during guilt phase of trial. Defendant sentenced to death.

People v. xxxxx (2004, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a matricide case, but was not called to testify. The defendant was convicted of murder.

People v. xxxxx (2004, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a child sexual homicide case, but was not called to testify. Defendant sentenced to death.

State of Idaho v. xxxxx (2004, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a sexual homicide case appeal. Not called to testify or submit a report.

Driver v. Driver (2002-2004). Retained by the plaintiff in a termination of parental rights case, Cook County Illinois jurisdiction. Testified for three days concerning the stalking behavior of the ex-husband, who was also psychopathic. Judge terminated parental rights of ex-husband.

People v. Gerardo Zavala (2004). Retained by the defense.

Barcher v. Barcher (2004). Retained by the court in a child custody case.

State of Nevada v. Reyes Olivares (2004). Retained by the defense to evaluate for sanity. Testified on October 20, 2005. Defendant was found sane and guilty of first degree murder. Conviction was overturned on appeal to the Nevada Supreme Court in 2008.

People v. Marcus Wesson (2005). Retained by the prosecution. Testified in an evidentiary hearing closed to the press and public on May 9, 2005. Defendant convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his nine children and grandchildren.

People v. Scott Krause (2004). Retained by the prosecution. Testified in a jury trial in Nevada County, California, July 20, 2005. Defendant found sane following a plea of guilt to second degree murder.

People v. Mitchell Patterson (2004). Retained by the prosecution. Testified in a jury trial in Nevada County, California, June 28, 2005. Found sane following a conviction for second degree murder.

People v. xxxxx (2004, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a robbery-homicide. Not called to testify at trial.

Sabia v. SABH (2005). Retained by the plaintiff in a civil case involving allegations of malpractice against a mental health professional and clinic that subsequently resulted in a familicide. Summary judgement issued for the defense.

In re: Uyesugi Related Civil Cases (2005). Retained by the plaintiff in one of many civil cases subsequent to a mass murder in Honolulu. Case settled.

People v. xxxxx (2005, not disclosed). Retained by the defense in a California homicide case.
